ASTURIAS NATURAL PARADISE FILM COMMISSION

Is a non-profit, public initiative founded in 2016 to make it easier for audiovisual producers and professionals to access all the information they need to shoot in our region.

Asturias is home to a plethora of georgeous natural resources and heritage sites that make the perfect backdrop for films and TV. Here you'll discover everything from the sea to the mountains, historic to modern buildings, forests to rivers, beaches to cliffs, and palaces to industrial architecture...

Throughout the years, the Principality of Asturias has served as a backdrop for movies, series and advertisements. Recent examples (among others) include: 'Marrowbone' by Sergio G. Sánchez, 'The Skin of the Wolf' by Samu Fuentes, 'The Zone' series by brothers Alberto and Jorge Sánchez-Cabezudo, 'The Maus' by Yayo Herrero, 'Si yo fuera rico' (If I were Rich) by Álvaro Fernández Armero, 'The influence' by Denis Rovira and 'Fire will Come' by Oliver Laxe. The Asturian Film Commission received the 2019 San Sebastián – Gipuzkoa Film Commission Award for its involvement in making this film.

The Film Commission and Asturias Tourism have also collaborated to produce the following documentaries: 'Cantábrico. Los dominios del oso pardo' (Cantabrian Territories of the Brown Bear) by Joaquín Gutiérrez Acha and '100 Days of Loneliness' by José Díaz.
